WEST COAST LINE SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

WEST COAST LINE publishes contemporary writers and artists who are experimenting with or expanding the boundaries of conventional forms and contexts. We are especially interested in vernacular and diasporic work. We seek out works addressing problems of representation, race, culture, gender, sexuality, technology, media, urban/rural spaces, nature, and language. We advise those considering submitting work to first familiarize themselves with the journal, and with the work of our recent contributors.

Submissions desired:

1. Mixed-genre: polyphonic texts, bibliographies, edited letters and manuscripts, text/image-based translations, book-installations, film/video stills w/wo text.
2. Poetry: "avant-garde," experimental and linguistically innovative writing, extended and serial forms, poetics, excerpts from long-poems; translations of contemporary sub-altern
3. Fiction: Please note that WCL very rarely publishes short-stories. When we do, we are looking especially for formally innovative and experimental work (up to 5,000 words).
4. Critical prose: please send us a query before submitting critical work, or if you are interested in writing a review.
5. Visual Art: please send us a query before submitting visual art.

Please note:

- our annual reading period is now June 1st to August 31st. Submissions received outside this period will be returned unread
- we do not accept electronic submissions (disk or email)
- a self-addressed envelope with Canadian postage or an International Postal Response coupon should accompany submissions. American stamps are not valid in Canada
- we cannot respond to submissions without return postage
- copyright reverts to the author after publication of the issue
- payment: $10 per page (min. $50; max $200) + contributors copies; covers: $150
- payment is made after publication
- donations of $35 or more receive a subscription and an official tax receipt.
